FRENCH, BELGIANS INVADE THE RUHR VALLEY

FRENCH ENCOUNTER NO RESISTANCE AT THE TOWN OF ESSEN

FRENCH TRAP OF STEEL TIGHTENS JAWS IN INDUSTRIAL REGION

NO TROUBLE THIS MORNING AS HORIZON BLUE OF POILUS APPEARED

(By United Press)

Essen, Jan. 11.—French troops entered Essen at 9 o'clock this morning, encountering no resistance.

Blue clad cavalry appeared at the outskirts of Essen-Bredeny, suburb of this city, a few minutes before the hour. Three tanks sent on ahead yesterday, wich had squatted like huge toads at the cross roads all night came suddenly to life and lead the march into the city proper.

Other cavalry converged on Essen by several roads.

Then came infantry spreading out gradually to north and south to form the jaws of the trap of steel that is to hold this rich industrial center while France collects.

There was no trouble this morning as the horizon blue of the first poilus showed in the outskirts and none was anticipated.

The citizens of Essen are preparing a protest to the United States and strict prohibition is to be enforced. Otherwise, life will go on as normally as the Germans can make it.

The army that had marched before day break came rapidly on into Essen. Along the line of march as the first cavalry passed, other tanks that had lain in wait rumbled into the procession. There were numbers of them on the road from Kettwig to Bredeny.

As the French troops swung eastward through the lifting fog, the columns passed stolid German teamsters puffing on their pipes, driving to their farms or to market, displayed only mild curiosity at the sight of the advance Franch hosts.

The French cavalry men were gay as they pranced through Kettwig, their picked charges trotting over the heavy cobblestones. They chanted little snatches of songs and their pennants fluttered gaily in the morning sun.

The long blue line on its eastward march wound around the steep hairpin turns of sharp hills, above the Ruhr river, then dropped down to the flats along the banks and into Kettwig.

The path ran straight before them into Bredeny.

The first of the cavalry that reached the outskirts of Essen was in three sections, with outposts ahead to stir the tanks to action and pass the word to the countryside that the French were coming.

Automobiles filled with officers sped past the columns when the long lines reached the top of the hill at Bredeny. Then the line of march was along the Essen street railway line.

To Punish Germany for Reparations Defaults

Paris, Jan. 11.—France, backed by Belgium, took the first step today to punish Germany for reparations defaults.

A little French army, small in numbers, but equipped as no war machine ever was before, moved into the rich Ruhr valley and occupied territory in the heart of the coal mining region.

With infantry, cavalry, tanks, field pieces and airplanes thrown into a steel trap around the wealthy industrial city of Essen as a guarantee of German good behavior, French engineers will now supervise the mining and distribution of Germany's coal.

Word came back from the army of occupation headquarters that French troops which had gone forward from Dusseldorff before dawn had reached Essen without incident.

An advance guard of cyclists, artillery and armored cars and machine guns entered the city. The main body of troops and artillery spread north and south, surrounding it. The population was calm and factories were running. What little tingle of excitement the French capital got from the news was enhanced by Germany's sudden action in withdrawing her ambassador, an act at one time significant of impending declaration of war.

It was understood in official circles, however, that the German government did not intend to break off diplomatic relations.

Another factor of the situation discussed by the French was the withdrawal of American troops from the Rhine.

Premier Poincare, it was said authoritatively, does not see any relation between the Ruhr advance and the American government's action. The withdrawal, but thinks, is a little inopportune, but not an unfriendly act.

Another thing France had on her mind as she took the step for which her "die hards" have been clamoring—invasion of the Ruhr—was activities of her own communists among whom a world plot against capitalism was discovered.

Gazals, prominent "red," was arrested in Paris last night and three communists were taken into custody at St. Quentin upon their return from Essen where a big workers meeting protested the occupation.

There was fear of an industrial move by Germany against French occupation of the Ruhr such as a general strike by workers or a closing down of factories.

35,000 French Hold "Ruhr Front"

Paris, Jan. 11.—The new "Ruhr front" is held by a French army of 35,000.

The line of the newly occupied region seized at dawn today runs from Birehausen to Essen to Werden to Rattingen.

Two divisions of French infantry and one of cavalry make up the advance army of occupation.

The district held is the richest region in Europe, second only to Pennsylvania in coal productivity.

Essen Germans in Ugly Mood

Essen, Jan. 11.—French cavalry, tanks and machine guns occupied the center of the city of Essen at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Trains were halted and communications temporarily closed.

Crowds of Germans in the streets near the railroad station and postoffice were in an ugly mood.

Martial law was declared in Essen this afternoon.

Belgians Assist French

Dusseldorff, Jan. 11.—Belgian troops went forward into the Ruhr a few hours after the French today.

A contingent comprised of two battalions of infantry, two squadrons of cavalry, a field battery, ten armored cars, and ten escorting airplanes advanced on Hulheim to the north of Essen.

France Occupies Heart of the Ruhr

Paris, Jan. 11.—France occupied the heart of the Ruhr today.

Essen was surrounded by an army of 35,000 men. Engineers started work outlining penalties in coal which Germany must pay for reparations default.

The German government recalled its ambassador to Paris and in a note to the powers warned that widespread troubles may be provoked through Europe by France's attitude.

Germany to Appeal to U. S.

Washingtin, Jan. 11.—Germany has decided to appeal her case in connection with the French occupation of the Ruhr directly to the United States government, it was learned today.

Dr. Otto Weidfeldt, German ambassador, tomorrow will present to Secretary of State Hughes a note which is understood to have been received from the Berlin givernment setting forth the full position of Germany in the face of the French march into the Ruhr.

CAPT. BILLY FAWCETT NEAR TOP IN TRAP SHOOTING AT PINEHURST, N. C

(By United Press)

Capt. Billy Fawcett, ardent sportsman and owner of "Breezy Point" lodge near Brainerd, continues to gain fame for this section and to bring to the notice of the world the big state trap shooting tournament to be held at Breezy Point early this season.

After winning a cup at a prominent gun club shoot in New York city, Capt. Fawcett went to Pinehurst, N. C., and landed close to the top.

The strongest field that ever shot in the Mid-Winter trapshooting tournament disposed of the first 150 targets in the 450-target high average race at Pinehurst Monday and was led at the finish by S. M. Crothers of Philadelphia and W. G. Warren, Chicago, who tied as high guns at 146. W. H. Fawcett, Minnesota, missed ten targets in the morning's 75 and then broke 73 in the afternoon for a total of 138 which put him only eight birds from the top.

ANOTHER SAYS HE WAS A VICTIM OF TERRORIST ATTACK

FRED HIGGINBOTHAM, NAMED AS BAND MEMBER, SAID HE WAS ATTACKED HIMSELF

(By United Press)

Bastrop, La., Jan. 11—Fred Higginbotham, named as a member of the terrorist band, charged with the murder of Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards, testified in court here today that he had been a victim of the mobs attacks.

Higginbotham told how he was held up by a group of black masked men a week before Richards and Daniels were brutally murdered. His name was mentioned in connection with the reign of terror by Henry J. Reelis.

Shortly before the hearing began, federal agents declared that they had discovered what appeared to have been an intent to assassinate W. C. Andrews, one of the state's star witnesses. A bullet mark was found in the door of Andrew's automobile but he was unable to say how or when the dnet was made.

COUNTRY BANK IS ROBBED OF $2,000

Maiden Rock, Wis., Jan. 11—Bandits early today burned the door from the vault in the State Bank here and escaped with loot estimated by bank officials at between $1,500 and $2,000.

They ransacked eighty safety deposit vaults, taking liberty bonds and jewelry.

Papers that they did not want were piled neatly in a corner of the room. Bank officials said a preliminary check indicated the total loot would not exceed $2,000. The robbery was discovered at 8 a. m. by W. H. Carpenter, an employee of the bank. Residents heard an automobile drive into town about 1:30 a. m. and heard it leave at 3 a. m.

It was trailed across Lake Pepin to Frontenac, Minnesota, and tracks indicated the bandits fled to Red Wing.

ARE AGREEING ON FUNDING WAR LOAN

Washington, Jan. 11—Agreement on terms for repayment of British war loans from the United States now totalling five billion dollars in principal and interest will be reached by the American and British debt funding commissions by January 19, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon indicated today. Mellon believes that the present rate of progress of the negotiations will enable him to place a program before President Harding and congress by that date.

CANNOT BUILD ON EXPECTATIONS AND NO BOND ISSUE

DECISION RENDERED BY JUDGE W. S. McCLENAHAN OF DISTRICT COURT

PLAINTIFF BEIDLEMAN TO FILE $15,000 BOND ON OR BEFORE JANUARY 20

Judge W. S. McClenahan of the district court has granted a temporary injunction restraining the county commissioners of Aitkin county from entering into a contract of $138,881 to build a new court house in Aitkin.

The plaintiff in the proceedings, William Beidleman of McGregor, was given until January 20 to file a bond of $15,000.

The attorney for the plaintiff is C. A. Ryan of Brainerd, of the firm of Ryan & Ryan. The county commissioners may appeal the decision to the supreme court and if not, then the matter comes to trial at the next term of the Aitkin district court, at which the temporary injunction will either be made permanent or dissolved.

The plaintiff alleged that the county cannot build when no bonds had been voted and when not enough funds had been accumulated to pay for the structure.

The title of the case is William Beidleman vs Board of County Commissioners of Aitkin County, W. W Rabey chairman of said board and H. C. Beecher, auditor of Aitkin county and clerk of said board. For the defendants there appeared D. A. Scott, county attorney of Aitkin county, Louis Hallum and L. T. Mahany.

Judge's Memorandum

In his memorandum Judge McClenahan stated:

"It seems to be the theory of counsel for the defendants that the assessed valuation shown by the pleadings is to be treated, so far as the amount thereof is concerned, as the list on file now, the grand list so called, until the contrary is made to appear by the plaintiff. I cannot agree with this view, but, whether that is their theory or not, is not here controlling, in my judgment. The general rule is that the county board cannot anticipate the future in matters of this kind. Johnston vs County of Becker 27 Minn., 64; Rogers vs LeSueur County, 57 Minn. 434. Just what is meant by the language 'anticipate the future' is stated in the Rogers case thus:

"'We are of the opinion that the board has no authority to incur liability on the part of the county which, with the ordinary current yearly expenses and other liabilities payable within the year, will exceed the amount of available funds in the treasury, and the amount which can be assessed as one year's taxes according to the tax lists on file when the contract was made under which the liability is incurred.'

"Counsel for the plaintiff is also in error in relying on the language of the case of Kiichli vs Minn. Brush El. Co., 58 Minn., 418, to the effect that the taxes must be 'actually levied' in order to be considered in such a situation. That was a case involving the interpretation of the charter of the city of Minneapolis, a section of which prohibited the creation of 'any debt or liability against said city in excess of the amount of revnue actually levied and applicable to the payment of such liabilities', and the court, after referring to the Johnstone and Rogers cases, says:

"'There the county commissioners were limited in incurring liability to the maximum amount which could be levied in one year according to the tax lists on file. Here the limitation is more stringent. It limits the city council, in incurring liability, to the amount of the tax actually levied at the time the liability is incurred'.

"The distinction is thus made clear and is important.

"I do not find that there is here any evidence of the tax lists on file

STRIKE OF GREAT NORTHERN ENDED, MEN CAN RETURN TO WORK REPORTED

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 11—Striking shopmen of the Great Northern railway were at liberty to go back to work last night, the walkout on that road which began last June, having been terminated, according to reliable information in railroad circles here.

The ending of the strike on the Great Northern, it was predicted, will be followed by similar action relative to the other lines in the northwest.

Official statements on the action made known were still lacking last night. Rail officials of the Great Northern declined to discuss the termination of the walkout and R. A. Henning, head of the striking shopmen in the northwest could not be reached.

The shopmen held a meeting last night at which it was said the results of the conference between the labor and railroad officials held last week relative to the return of the men to work was explained to the men. Persons attending the meeting, however, were required to identify themselves before they were granted admittance.

According to information available the strikers will be put back to work as the jobs become open for them, but will not take precedence in seniority over the present employes of the railroad. Wages and worknig conditions, it was said, will remain the same as since October when the new shop associations, formed following the strike, made new agreements with the rail officials.

Shop Strike Settlement Denied

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 11—Great Northern shopmen will decide tonight whether to end their strike which has continued since last July. Workers will hold meetings at all shop centers to discuss the question submitted by union officials.

Reports circulated yesterday that the strike had been settled were denied.

"I know of no settlement of the shopmen's strike" said Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern.

"We would be glad if the strike was settled, and will do just as we have said all along that the men out will be taken back as fast as vacancies occur".

STATE WITNESSES THREATENED WITH DEATH, HERRIN CASE

ANONYMOUS LETTERS WERE ADDRESSED TO FOUR OF THEM

RECEIVED BY REAL ESTATE MAN, FORMER MAYOR AND TWO FARMERS

Marion, Ill., Jan. 11—Four witnesses for the state in the Herrin massacre trial were threatened with death today.

The threats were made in anonymous letters. Two of the missives contained a strand of rope designated as a "hangman's noose."

The letters were received by R. T. Poole, Herrin real estate dealer; H. O. Greer, former mayor of Herrin, and George Harrison, and George Nelson, farmers.

Poole, who testified he saw Lee Mann and Percy Hall, two of the defendants, in the "death march" through the streets of Herrin June 22, received the first letter.

It was left on the front porch of his home. Beside it was a heavy rope, four feet long and an inch in circumference. The rope was tied in a slip knot.

"I heard you testify in the court house," the letter said. "Unless you go back there and testify you lied look out for your life. We don't need any damned ——— like you in Herrin."

The other letters were similar, W. Middlekauff, assistant attorney general, declared.

"The substance of all of them was to warn the witnesses that if they did not go before the jury and say they lied they would be killed or their homes blown up."

The letter and rope received by Poole were turned over to the United Press by Mrs. Poole.

The letter was scribbled in pencil and badly misspelled. There was no signature. A large drawing of skull and cross bones was inscribed at the bottom of the page.

"We have been alarmed ever since finding these on our front porch," Mrs. Poole said.

"My husband is insulted on the streets and his business has dropped off to practically nothing.

I never leave the house without being the object of insulting remarks by neighbors."

Greer owns a grocery store in Herrin, and declared since testifying his business has suffered from a general boycott.

Harrison, who testified to seeing one of the defendants fleeing from the woods where four bodies were later found, received two letters.

Nelson, the fourth man to receive a letter, had testified to seeing Otis Clark, defendant, leaving the McDowell mine superintendent along the road where his body was later found.

Following admission by state attorneys that threats had been made, it was reported Williamson county farmers had organized a secret society to combat violence they feared from miners as the result of testimony given in the trial.

STATE SENATE HAS BILL A MINUTE

22 BILLS TODAY WERE INTRODUCED IN 22 MINUTES OF THE SESSION HELD TODAY

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—The state senate today continued its "bill a minute record" when 22 bills were introduced during the 22 minute session.

Most of the bills proposed were curative legislation offered by the St. Louis county delegation.

Senator Chas. E. Adams, Duluth, introduced a bill providing for a $100,000 aviation field in St. Louis county outside Duluth. It gives county commissioners power to issue bonds for that amount.

Another bill by the St. Louis county delegation increases the salary of the superintendent of schools in that county from $3,500 to $4,800 a year. This is more than the state auditor receives.

Senator James Dwyer, Minneapolis, introduced a resolution endorsing the League of Nations, and deploring the fact that the United States had not entered the pact. The resolution was referred to the committee on labor, of which Senator Dwyer is chairman. The senate committee on elections outlined procedure today in the committees between Senator Martin J. Conroy, St. Paul, and Walter Lemon. Senator Conroy has taken his seat following a recount of the votes in St. Paul.

Symbolizing Liberty.

"What is this place?"

"The Ladies' Liberty club."

"A patriotic organization?"

"Not exactly. Do you see those ladies lounging on the veranda and smoking cigarettes?"

"Yes."

"They are studies in self-expression." Birmingham Age-Herald.

CONSTANTINE I DIED TODAY IN PALERMO; TWICE GREEK KING

CEREBRAL HEMORRHAGE WAS THE CAUSE OF HIS DEATH AT PALERMO

HE WAS ONE OF THE MOST DRAMATIC FIGURES OF GREAT WAR

(By United Press)

Rome, Jan. 11.—Constantine I, twice king of Greece, twice driven to exile, died today at Palermo.

The former monarch, recently overthrown by revolutionaries following the crushing defeat of forces in his ambition to capture Constantinople from the Turks, was spending the winter at the Italian resort, awaiting opportunity to return once more to his country.

Cerebral hemorrhage caused the death. His wife, Sophia, sister of the ex-German emperor, was with him. It was her influence that drove Constantine on in his ambitious plans for conquest and restoration of the ancient kingdom of the Hellenes and his final overthrow.

Worry, following the defeat of his army by the Turks, the collapse of his government and the execution of his cabinet members by the revolutionaries, lead to the hemorrhage of the brain which caused his death.

Constantine, whose nick name "Tino" was world famous, was one of the most dramatic figures of the great war.

Urged by his wife, he engaged in pro-German plots which resulted in Venizelos, backed by the allies, throwing him out of power. Greece joined the allies.

But Constantine, exiled, bided his time and awaited the opportunity to return. Finally the people by their vote announced they wanted him as king and he came back. His entry into Athens on the occasion was one of the most spectacular sights ever witnessed by that historic city.

The king rode the crest of the wave of triumph which lead him to believe Greece could conquer the Turks and regain the ancient Hellenic lands held by the Moslems.

He instituted war, went to the front and encouraged his troops and started an army for Angora.

Then he returned to Athens and awaited results. The Turks launched a counter-attack and Constantine, sitting in his palace received dispatch after dispatch announcing military disaster.

The revolution broke out. Rebel soldiers paraded the streets. The people who had cheered Constantine on his triumphant return from exile now jeered hm beneath the windows of the palace. He abdicated in favor of his son George and again became a royal refugee.

The revolutionists tried his former cabinet members for treason and executed several of them. Constantine, in his exile, brooded over them and over the wrecking of his plans for regaining for Greece "her place in the sun." He lived only a few weeks after his second overthrow.

P. G. Harding, former head of the federal reserve banking system is to be president.

Plans for the operation of such a gigantic syndicate in world trade were revealed today at hearings before the House judiciary committee on a bill giving the corporation the protection it seeks from the government. The corporation is said to represent a consolidation of some of the largest oil companies, textile mills and railroad interests in the United States, and is now chartered in the state of Delaware with $100,000,000 capital.

Co., 58 Minn., 418, to the effiect that the taxes must be 'actually levied' in order to be considered in such a situation. That was a case involving the interpretation of the charter of the city of Minneapolis, a section of which prohibited the creation of 'any debt or liability against said city in excess of the amount of revnue actually levied and applicable to the payment of such liabilities', and the court, after referring to the Johnstone and Rogers cases, says:

"'There the county commissioners were limited in incurring liability to the maximum amount which could be levied in one year according to the tax lists on file. Here the limitation is more stringent. It limits the city council, in incurring liability, to the amount of the tax actually levied at the time the liability is incurred'.

"The distinction is thus made clear and is important.

"I do not find that there is here any evidence of the tax lists on file

STRIKE OF GREAT NORTHERN ENDED, MEN CAN RETURN TO WORK REPORTED

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 11—Striking shopmen of the Great Northern railway were at liberty to go back to work last night, the walkout on that road which began last June, having been terminated, according to reliable information in railroad circles here.

The ending of the strike on the Great Northern, it was predicted, will be followed by similar action relative to the other lines in the northwest.

Official statements on the action made known were still lacking last night. Rail officials of the Great Northern declined to discuss the termination of the walkout and R. A. Henning, head of the striking shopmen in the northwest could not be reached.

The shopmen held a meeting last night at which it was said the results of the conference between the labor and railroad officials held last week relative to the return of the men to work was explained to the men. Persons attending the meeting, however, were required to identify themselves before they were granted admittance.

According to information available the strikers will be put back to work as the jobs become open for them, but will not take precedence in seniority over the present employes of the railroad. Wages and worknig conditions, it was said, will remain the same as since October when the new shop associations, formed following the strike, made new agreements with the rail officials.

Shop Strike Settlement Denied

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 11—Great Northern shopmen will decide tonight whether to end their strike which has continued since last July. Workers will hold meetings at all shop centers to discuss the question submitted by union officials.

Reports circulated yesterday that the strike had been settled were denied.

"I know of no settlement of the shopmen's strike" said Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern.

"We would be glad if the strike was settled, and will do just as we have said all along that the men out will be taken back as fast as vacancies occur".

STATE WITNESSES THREATENED WITH DEATH, HERRIN CASE

ANONYMOUS LETTERS WERE ADDRESSED TO FOUR OF THEM

RECEIVED BY REAL ESTATE MAN, FORMER MAYOR AND TWO FARMERS

Marion, Ill., Jan. 11—Four witnesses for the state in the Herrin massacre trial were threatened with death today.

The threats were made in anonymous letters. Two of the missives contained a strand of rope designated as a "hangman's noose."

The letters were received by R. T. Poole, Herrin real estate dealer; H. O. Greer, former mayor of Herrin, and George Harrison, and George Nelson, farmers.

Poole, who testified he saw Lee Mann and Percy Hall, two of the defendants, in the "death march" through the streets of Herrin June 22, received the first letter.

It was left on the front porch of his home. Beside it was a heavy rope, four feet long and an inch in circumference. The rope was tied in a slip knot.

"I heard you testify in the court house," the letter said. "Unless you go back there and testify you lied look out for your life. We don't need any damned ——— like you in Herrin."

The other letters were similar, W. Middlekauff, assistant attorney general, declared.

"The substance of all of them was to warn the witnesses that if they did not go before the jury and say they lied they would be killed or their homes blown up."

The letter and rope received by Poole were turned over to the United Press by Mrs. Poole.

The letter was scribbled in pencil and badly misspelled. There was no signature. A large drawing of skull and cross bones was inscribed at the bottom of the page.

"We have been alarmed ever since finding these on our front porch," Mrs. Poole said.

"My husband is insulted on the streets and his business has dropped off to practically nothing.

I never leave the house without being the object of insulting remarks by neighbors."

Greer owns a grocery store in Herrin, and declared since testifying his business has suffered from a general boycott.

Harrison, who testified to seeing one of the defendants fleeing from the woods where four bodies were later found, received two letters.

Nelson, the fourth man to receive a letter, had testified to seeing Otis Clark, defendant, leaving the McDowell mine superintendent along the road where his body was later found.

Following admission by state attorneys that threats had been made, it was reported Williamson county farmers had organized a secret society to combat violence they feared from miners as the result of testimony given in the trial.

STATE SENATE HAS BILL A MINUTE

22 BILLS TODAY WERE INTRODUCED IN 22 MINUTES OF THE SESSION HELD TODAY

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—The state senate today continued its "bill a minute record" when 22 bills were introduced during the 22 minute session.

Most of the bills proposed were curative legislation offered by the St. Louis county delegation.

Senator Chas. E. Adams, Duluth, introduced a bill providing for a $100,000 aviation field in St. Louis county outside Duluth. It gives county commissioners power to issue bonds for that amount.

Another bill by the St. Louis county delegation increases the salary of the superintendent of schools in that county from $3,500 to $4,800 a year. This is more than the state auditor receives.

Senator James Dwyer, Minneapolis, introduced a resolution endorsing the League of Nations, and deploring the fact that the United States had not entered the pact. The resolution was referred to the committee on labor, of which Senator Dwyer is chairman. The senate committee on elections outlined procedure today in the committees between Senator Martin J. Conroy, St. Paul, and Walter Lemon. Senator Conroy has taken his seat following a reccunt of the votes in St. Paul.

Symbolizing Liberty.

"The Ladies' Liberty club."

"A patriotic organization?"

"Not exactly. Do you see those ladies lounging on the veranda and smoking cigarettes?"

"Yes."

CONSTANTINE I DIED TODAY IN PALERMO; TWICE GREEK KING

HE WAS ONE OF THE MOST DRAMATIC FIGURES OF GREAT WAR

(By United Press)

Rome, Jan. 11.—Constantine I, twice king of Greece, twice driven to exile, died today at Palermo.

The former monarch, recently overthrown by revolutionaries following the crushing defeat of forces in his ambition to capture Constantinople from the Turks, was spending the winter at the Italian resort, awaiting opportunity to return once more to his country.

Cerebral hemorrhage caused the death. His wife, Sophia, sister of the ex-German emperor, was with him. It was her influence that drove Constantine on in his ambitious plans for conquest and restoration of the ancient kingdom of the Hellenes and his final overthrow.

Worry, following the defeat of his army by the Turks, the collapse of his government and the execution of his cabinet members by the revolutionaries, lead to the hemorrhage of the brain which caused his death.

Urged by his wife, he engaged in pro-German plots which resulted in Venizelos, backed by the allies, throwing him out of power. Greece joined the allies.

But Constantine, exiled, bided his time and awaited the opportunity to return. Finally the people by their vote announced they wanted him as king and he came back. His entry into Athens on the occasion was one of the most spectacular sights ever witnessed by that historic city.

The king rode the crest of the wave of triumph which lead him to believe Greece could conquer the Turks and regain the ancient Hellenic lands held by the Moslems.

He instituted war, went to the front and encouraged his troops and started an army for Angora.

Then he returned to Athens and awaited results. The Turks launched a counter-attack and Constantine, sitting in his palace received dispatch after dispatch announcing military disaster.

The revolution broke out. Rebel soldiers paraded the streets. The people who had cheered Constantine on his triumphant return from exile now jeered hm beneath the windows of the palace. He abdicated in favor of his son George and again became a royal refugee.

The revolutionists tried his former cabinet members for treason and executed several of them. Constantine, in his exile, brooded over them and over the wrecking of his plans for regaining for Greece "her place in the sun." He lived only a few weeks after his second overthrow.

Washington, Jan. 11—Congress was asked today to give a federal charter and free entry at principal ports to a two billion dollar world finance corporation organized to deal in all lines of foreign commerce and of which W. P. G. Harding, former head of the federal reserve banking system is to be president.

Plans for the operation of such a gigantic syndicate in world trade were revealed today at hearings before the House judiciary committee on a bill giving the corporation the protection it seeks from the government. The corporation is said to represent a consolidation of some of the largest oil companies, textile mills and railroad interests in the United States, and is now chartered in the state of Delaware with $100,000,000 capital.

It Was Happiness, Unlimited

Crossways was an "old" town. All the young people had gone into the cities. The group of old men gathered about the corner store sighed, stretched their limbs in the bright autumn weather, and thought of the time when they were boys.

Eli Creagan sighed. "Guess the weather's due to change, boys," he said.

Sam Hollis agreed and stuffed another fill of tobacco into his pipe.

"There's a new feller in town," said old Abraham Cowl. "Wonder where he comes from."

The stranger who approached the little group might have been of any age between twenty and fifty. He had a clean shaven face, long hair, and bright, twinkling blue eyes.

"Swede, I guess," said Eli Creagan.

"Hello, fellers!" said the stranger; and the old men stared at him.

"What's doing in town?"

"Aw, there ain't never nothing doing in this bum hole!" said Sam.

"Let's go fishing!"

They pricked up their old ears. None of them had fished since they were boys.

"I saw a mighty lot of perch and sunfish down in the crick. Get your hats, fellers, and foller me."

Whatever the magnetism of this extraordinary stranger might be due to, they could not help but obey him. In a few moments the three old men were toddling after him down the road as fast as they could go.

"Hey, wait!" called Abraham Cowl. "My old legs ain't as quick as yourn."

"Nothing the matter with your legs—any of you," replied the stranger.

And it was an extraordinary thing, but from that moment none of them felt their rheumatic twinges any more. They hobbled after him, as brisk as boys.

When they reached the creek the stranger cut four poles, and, producing string and hooks, and a tin of worms from his capacious pockets, soon had four fishing poles, hooked and baited. At the first attempt Abraham Cowl yelled:

"I got one! I got one!"

And his line came up, with an enormous sunfish at the end.

"I got one!" shouted Eli Creagan; and they all agreed that they had never seen a perch so big before.

Then Sam Hollis fished up a catfish, a monster, and within an hour the banks were covered with fish.

"Had enough, boys?" asked the stranger. "Come on, then. Old Man Hodge's apples are ripe. I was looking at them as I came along."

"Say—" began Sam Hollis.

"Just the thing, boys. We'll fill our pockets."

"But—but 'taint right," gasped Abraham Cowl.

"And he keeps a bulldog," said Eli Creagan.

"Aw, come on. Be sports! Are you scared of a bulldog?" the stranger demanded.

Under the influence of this extraordinary man they felt utterly devoid of the power to oppose him. Gathering up their catch and threading them through the gills, they all set forth in the direction of Old Man Hodge's orchard.

They arrived puffing, for the stranger made them run all the way. Sure enough, the apple trees were loaded with red, ripe, luscious apples.

"Come on, fellers!" said the stranger, shinning up a tree. And the three followed suit. In a minute they were filling their pockets and taking luscious bites into the fruit.

"Hey, there!"

It was Old Man Hodges running across the fields, a shotgun in his hand. By his side careered a barking bulldog.

In a moment the four were shinning down the tree and running as hard as they could go. After them came the bulldog. The irate shouts of their pursuer grew fainter, the barking of the dog died away in the distance.

Gasping and panting the three old men pulled up in front of the corner store.

"Whew!" said Abraham Cowl. "That sure was nip and tuck, boys! Hi, where's the stranger?"

"Where's my fish?"

"Where are them apples?"

They stared at one another in bewilderment. Neither stranger, fish, nor apples were to be seen.

"I guess we been dreaming," muttered Abraham Cowl.

"Who was he?"

"Say, I was wondering," said Sam Hollis.

"What's that?"

"Wasn't he the—the sort of kid each of us used to be?"

Ready to Take His Medicine

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Carney had had enough. He was going back to take his medicine. He was tired of being an outlaw; he wanted to see his people again, take what was coming to him and feel free. Those six months had been terrible ones.

He knew no other job than banking, and he had been out of work nearly all the time; he had been in the bread line; at last he got a porter's job and saved up the fare back to New York to face the music.

He reviewed the circumstances in the train. He had determined for a long time to get away with a few of those stacks of bills that were thrust into the bank's vault on Saturday morning. He had made up a parcel of dummies. He planned to walk out of the bank with the real bills; Kate Egan would meet him at the corner of Broadway and Dey, and he would hand them to her.

Kate was to meet him an hour later at the station, and they were to travel separately to San Francisco. Nobody knew Kate, and, even if they caught him, the money would not be found.

Carney carried out his program. At twelve o'clock he walked out of the bank, with the package in his bag. Kate was waiting for him at the rendezvous. He beckoned her around the corner, stepped into a recess, and handed it to her.

"The 1:15, Kate, old girl," he said.

Kate nodded and left him. An hour later he was pacing the waiting room, looking about him anxiously for Kate. She was nowhere to be seen.

He bought his ticket and went on the platform. From there he scanned all the arriving passengers. Still no signs of the girl.

"Hurry up, sir!"

The train was about to start. Carney entered, and walked through from one end to the other, inspecting everyone aboard. Kate was not there.

She had fooled him! Hot indignation filled him. Kate, whom he had always trusted!

The day after his arrival he got a letter from her at the post office. He tore it open eagerly.

"You poor mutt," it ran. "I guess you're feeling sick and sorry for yourself now, aren't you? When you get tired of traveling you needn't come back to me, because I'm through with you."

That was all, and six months of hell had followed, rendered worse—if they could be worse—by the contrast between that outcast life and the life they had planned to lead in the South Seas.

However, Carney read nothing about the theft in the papers. Probably it was not worth reporting in San Francisco. He took a room at a cheap lodging house, and turned round in the streets to see if he was being followed.

* * * * * * *

So he was going back to take his medicine. When the train rolled into the New York terminal he felt an elation that had not been his for all the period of his absence.

When he went into the bank next morning they stared at him as if he had come back from the dead.

"Why, Carney, where've you been?" demanded the cashier sarcastically. "We've all been wearing crape for you."

"Can I see the manager?" asked Carney quietly. He resented the cashier's insult. He glanced back and saw the porter following him slowly, ready to intercept his flight.

"I guess so. Walk right in," said the cashier, grinning.

The manager looked up from his desk, where he was dictating letters to his stenographer. He gave a slight start. "Just a minute, Carney," he said briefly.

Carney stood, looking at him. Mr. Meeson had always had the reputation of kindliness. But the bank had lost several thousand dollars; and the best thing that he could hope for was a couple of years up the river.

"Thank you, that will do, Miss Burroughs." The manager turned to Carney. "Well, Carney, where have you been? You left us in a very unceremonious manner."

The baiting was more than Carney could stand. "I've come back to take what's coming to me," he said, "but I don't want to be kicked." Then, as Meeson looked at him in inquiry, he began to detail the happenings of the six months. He told him about Kate.

"I'm ready for the detective," he said. "Please make it brief. I'm not going to make any trouble."

Mr. Meeson smiled. "I'd steer clear of that woman if you run up against her again, Carney," he said. "I see you haven't found out yet?"

Hope leaped into Carney's eyes. Something, some imperceptible gradation of humor in Meeson's expression encouraged him to hope.

"I didn't know either till two minutes ago. We didn't know that anything was wrong, Carney. It was evidently the dummy package you took with you."

Vigilance Needed.

Deacon," said the preacher, "why is it dat every time you takes up de collection you brings back so many buttons, plugged nickels and other trash dat don't help to pay de pastor's salary?"

"I saw a mighty lot of perch and sunfish down in the crick. Get your hats, fellers, and foller me."

Whatever the magnetism of this extraordinary stranger might be due to, they could not help but obey him. In a few moments the three old men were toddling after him down the road as fast as they could go.

"Hey, wait!" called Abraham Cowl. "My old legs ain't as quick as yourn."

"Nothing the matter with your legs—any of you," replied the stranger.

And it was an extraordinary thing, but from that moment none of them felt their rheumatic twinges any more. They hobbled after him, as brisk as boys.

When they reached the creek the stranger cut four poles, and, producing string and hooks, and a tin of worms from his capacious pockets, soon had four fishing poles, hooked and baited. At the first attempt Abraham Cowl yelled:

"I got one! I got one!"

And his line came up, with an enormous sunfish at the end.

"I got one!" shouted Eli Creagan; and they all agreed that they had never seen a perch so big before.

Then Sam Hollis fished up a catfish, a monster, and within an hour the banks were covered with fish.

"Had enough, boys?" asked the stranger. "Come on, then. Old Man Hodge's apples are ripe. I was looking at them as I came along."

"Say—" began Sam Hollis.

"Just the thing, boys. We'll fill our pockets."

"But—but 'taint right," gasped Abraham Cowl.

"And he keeps a bulldog," said Eli Creagan.

"Aw, come on. Be sports! Are you scared of a bulldog?" the stranger demanded.

Under the influence of this extraordinary man they felt utterly devoid of the power to oppose him. Gathering up their catch and threading them through the gills, they all set forth in the direction of Old Man Hodge's orchard.

They arrived puffing, for the stranger made them run all the way. Sure enough, the apple trees were loaded with red, ripe, luscious apples.

"Come on, fellers!" said the stranger, shinning up a tree. And the three followed suit. In a minute they were filling their pockets and taking luscious bites into the fruit.

"Hey, there!"

It was Old Man Hodges running across the fields, a shotgun in his hand. By his side careered a barking bulldog.

In a moment the four were shinning down the tree and running as hard as they could go. After them came the bulldog. The irate shouts of their pursuer grew fainter, the barking of the dog died away in the distance.

Gasping and panting the three old men pulled up in front of the corner store.

"Whew!" said Abraham Cowl. "That sure was nip and tuck, boys! Hi, where's the stranger?"

"Where's my fish?"

"Where are them apples?"

They stared at one another in bewilderment. Neither stranger, fish, nor apples were to be seen.

"I guess we been dreaming," muttered Abraham Cowl.

"Who was he?"

"Say, I was wondering," said Sam Hollis.

"What's that?"

"Wasn't he the—the sort of kid each of us used to be?"

Ready to Take His Medicine

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Carney had had enough. He was going back to take his medicine. He was tired of being an outlaw; he wanted to see his people again, take what was coming to him and feel free. Those six months had been terrible ones.

He knew no other job than banking, and he had been out of work nearly all the time; he had been in the bread line; at last he got a porter's job and saved up the fare back to New York to face the music.

He reviewed the circumstances in the train. He had determined for a long time to get away with a few of those stacks of bills that were thrust into the bank's vault on Saturday morning. He had made up a parcel of dummies. He planned to walk out of the bank with the real bills; Kate Egan would meet him at the corner of Broadway and Dey, and he would hand them to her.

Kate was to meet him an hour later at the station, and they were to travel separately to San Francisco. Nobody knew Kate, and, even if they caught him, the money would not be found.

Carney carried out his program. At twelve o'clock he walked out of the bank, with the package in his bag. Kate was waiting for him at the rendezvous. He beckoned her around the corner, stepped into a recess, and handed it to her.

"The 1:15, Kate, old girl," he said.

Kate nodded and left him. An hour later he was pacing the waiting room, looking about him anxiously for Kate. She was nowhere to be seen.

He bought his ticket and went on the platform. From there he scanned all the arriving passengers. Still no signs of the girl.

"Hurry up, sir!"

The train was about to start. Carney entered, and walked through from one end to the other, inspecting everyone aboard. Kate was not there.

She had fooled him! Hot indignation filled him. Kate, whom he had always trusted!

The day after his arrival he got a letter from her at the post office. He tore it open eagerly.

"You poor mutt," it ran. "I guess you're feeling sick and sorry for yourself now, aren't you? When you get tired of traveling you needn't come back to me, because I'm through with you."

That was all, and six months of hell had followed, rendered worse—if they could be worse—by the contrast between that outcast life and the life they had planned to lead in the South Seas.

However, Carney read nothing about the theft in the papers. Probably it was not worth reporting in San Francisco. He took a room at a cheap lodging house, and turned round in the streets to see if he was being followed.

* * * * * * *

So he was going back to take his medicine. When the train rolled into the New York terminal he felt an elation that had not been his for all the period of his absence.

When he went into the bank next morning they stared at him as if he had come back from the dead.

"Why, Carney, where've you been?" demanded the cashier sarcastically. "We've all been wearing crape for you."

"Can I see the manager?" asked Carney quietly. He resented the cashier's insult. He glanced back and saw the porter following him slowly, ready to intercept his flight.

"I guess so. Walk right in," said the cashier, grinning.

The manager looked up from his desk, where he was dictating letters to his stenographer. He gave a slight start. "Just a minute, Carney," he said briefly.

Carney stood, looking at him. Mr. Meeson had always had the reputation of kindliness. But the bank had lost several thousand dollars; and the best thing that he could hope for was a couple of years up the river.

"Thank you, that will do, Miss Burroughs." The manager turned to Carney. "Well, Carney, where have you been? You left us in a very unceremonious manner."

The baiting was more than Carney could stand. "I've come back to take what's coming to me," he said, "but I don't want to be kicked." Then, as Meeson looked at him in inquiry, he began to detail the happenings of the six months. He told him about Kate.

"I'm ready for the detective," he said. "Please make it brief. I'm not going to make any trouble."

Mr. Meeson smiled. "I'd steer clear of that woman if you run up against her again, Carney," he said. "I see you haven't found out yet?"

Hope leaped into Carney's eyes. Something, some imperceptible gradation of humor in Meeson's expression encouraged him to hope.

"I didn't know either till two minutes ago. We didn't know that anything was wrong, Carney. It was evidently the dummy package you took with you."

Vigilance Needed.

LYCEUM THEATRE IN THIRD YEAR

Made Wonderful Progress Under Direction of W. R. Hiller, Who Har Raised Standard of House

BEST PICTURES IS THE RULE

Some of Titles of Paramount Studios, Offerings to Appear Soon, are Presented

The Lyceum theatre has just started on its third year of successful business under the management of W. R. Hiller who has raised the standard of this popular picture house to a marked degree in that length of time.

Mr. Hiller, when he took charge two years ago, started the policy of giving his patrons the best pictures that could be obtained and also to prepare a well balanced program, for each performance.

This policy has been strictly adhered to, and will be continued the coming year. A strong line of pictures has been booked which should do much to still further the confidence that theatre-goers have in the Lyceum.

As a proof of quality of the features that are coming to this theatre, a few from the Paramount studios are listed below:

Gloria Swanson, Elliott Dexter and Wallace Reid in an exceptionally good picture, "Don't Tell Everything" Elsie Ferguson in "Footlights," Marion Davies in "Enchantment," Wallace Reid in "The Hell Diggers," Betty Compson in "End of the World."

Ethel Clayton will star in "Beyond," Richard Barthelmess appears in "Experience," Dorothy Dalton comes in the "Crimson Challenge," "After The Show," by Cecil B. De Mille, and another of his great productions, "Fool's Paradise."

Then there is "The Great Moment" featuring Gloria Swanson, "Just around the Corner," written by Fannie Hurst, "The Three Live Ghosts," "The Affairs of Anatol" and "Saturday Night."

Last but not least is D. W. Griffith's latest masterpiece, "The Two Orphans". This picture is coming to the Lyceum early in February and will be shown four days.

LOVE THAT IS TRUE AND KIND

Some Will Say It Is Considered Somewhat Old-Fashioned by the "Flappers" of Today.

As David Mann, in Charles D. Stewart's "Valley Waters," listens to "Lorena," he visualizes the theme, thus, of the old song of Civil war times:

"The woman was beautiful. He had found her to be beautiful in every way. He had fallen in love with her in her girlhood and had received her love in return.

"And, having once loved her, he could no more forget than he could forget himself.

"What a man experiences has become part of his possessions; it must remain a part of his life.

"David could see that the man would not only continue to love Lorena, but that his love might grow stronger and finer as time went on.

"Having lost her, she would become a cherished ideal, a vision which never grows old. And as time passed, instead of forgetting her, he would become more conscious of the 'lost years' —the years that had not been passed in her company."

That's the way when love is true and kind. To an age of flappers and flippancies is it an old-fashioned way?

DREAM OF MANY INVENTORS

Much Time and Thought Wasted on Machines Meant to Attain Perpetual Motion.

Perpetual motion has been the dream of inventors for many centuries. By perpetual motion is usually meant a mechanical device which will operate of its own power without such external or internal aids as wind, gas, steam or any other element of force. Some have come very near to attaining a kind of perfection by a series of weights and balances; also by the use of quicksilver, but while these machines will operate for a time, they are unable in that time to develop sufficient power to work machinery or be of any real benefit. In the town of Minnedosa, Man., an old gentleman had for some years a machine of his own invention operated by a series of weights by which he was said to have run a small lathe. A scientist named Strutt has invented an apparatus which takes advantage of radium emanations upon a gold leaf electroscope. This perhaps comes near to an endless motion, but is maintained at the expense of the molecular energy of the radium.

Enormous Structure.

The weight of the great pyramid of Egypt has been estimated at 6,000,000 tons.

AIDING THE BOY'S SELF-EXPRESSION

THE boy broblem is not the problem to the boy that it is to his elders who do not understand him. Therefore, during recent years, in which a good deal of attention has been given to the study of boy life, men have come to realize that boys are best helped not by forcing them along certain fixed roads but by directing them in the roads they instinctively choose.

Unless the nature of the boy is understood those who are responsible for his training are apt to think of his viewpoint as similar to their own. This is a mistake. The boy does not think in the same way as the man, and the boy himself is a changing individual who is affected by different influences at different periods of his life.

Carl Zapffe gave a splendidly clear statement of the growth of the boy, and the influences that play upon his life during its different periods, at a meeting of the Whittier Parent Teachers association on Tuesday evening. He showed the respective values of these influences and indicated that the two influences that take a high place in the boy's training and development and remain with him, influencing him through the years, are the gang and the hero influences. Because this is true some organization must be found that will allow the boy to express himself within an orderly group, he being led by his natural instinct to be one of the gang. The boy's hero worship is closely related to the gang instinct, and his hero is likely to be one of the gang, with the result that his life is influnced for good or ill through his choice of his hero.

The Rotary clubs have taken upon themselves the task of aiding the boy in his self-expression, and the men of these clubs could not have chosen a more hopeful or rewarding task. These clubs do not attempt to solve all problems at once but stay by a work that they have taken up. This is a commendable rule, and the boys of Brainerd are to be offered the chance of self-expression through the boy scout movement which will have the enthusiastic backing of the Brainerd Rotary club. This will afford the boys of the city an opportunity of self-expression along natural lines, directed by good leadership which understands boy psychology. This will not super-impose upon the boy an unnatural system but will guide his self-expression.

MASKED ORDERS

THE south is gaining a great deal of notoriety because of the horrible things that have been done by masked marauders making raids by night. Whether the Ku Klux Klan is or is not directly to blame for these dreadful acts the responsibility indirectly falls upon this organization. If men of criminal nature hide themselves behind the Klan to work their horrible deeds the organization which, through its use of the mask, makes it easy for such criminals to do their vile work and get away with it cannot escape censure. Of course, it may be said that evil-minded men hide behind all good organizations, including the church, under the cloak of which they do evil. This, however, is not a fair parallel because the church does not deliberately disguise itself and hide its consistent membership behind masks.

The above constitutes one reason why such organizations ought not to be countenanced. Masked good gives an opportunity for masked evil to hide behind the good. But this raises the question whether or not the calling into being of such organizations is a good thing for society. It may be safely said that no organization should be allowed to take the law into its own hands. Once this is allowed, then the bars are down, and any group of men, whose purpose may be either enforcement of their moral code, or deliberately revolutionary, may hide themselves behind masks and enforce their will upon others.

The law of our land does not allow any group to impose its will upon the community by force. Whatever the intention of such may be their activities are lawless and they ought to be suppressed. The methods of the Spanish Inquisition must not be countenanced in America in the Twentieth century.

QUICK AND CERTAIN JUSTICE IN LONDON

WITHOUT entering into the question of the justification for capital punishment, citizens of our disturbed social order will applaud the way in which the law officers of London, England, carried out the penalty imposed upon two persons who were found guilty of causing the death of another.

There were many sentimental reasons why these two should have been saved from the gallows. The woman, reports state, was to become a mother, while the man was young and had become infatuated with the woman whose husband he killed. A sentimental appeal was made to the English people and over a million signed a petition addressed to the Home Secretary asking that the young man be saved from death by hanging.

These two had been convicted under law, condemned under law, sentenced under law, and the penalty was imposed under law. This is the crux of the whole matter. The law fixed the penalty and the penalty was exacted. This is as it should be.

And now a word as to capital punishment. Minnesota will secure little good by fixing such a penalty until Minnesotans who serve on juries convict criminals and all citizens demand that all by-paths be blocked by which the criminal so often escapes from the road that leads directly to the penalty. The important thing is not whether a criminal be hanged, electrocuted, drowned, sawed asunder, or sent up for life, but that the penalty, whatever it is, be speedily and surely imposed.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

THE Dispatch carried an article on Tuesday evening that restated many of the facts about the change that has been wrought in American life through the development of modern industrialism.

The aged are no longer wanted in our enterprises. In our machine age, in which a man in a large industry does but one simple task continuously, he can be trained in three weeks to become a proficient worker and his best usefulness is passed when he has reached an age that lies under forty.

Industrialism is the dominant factor in our modern life and what is found to be true within it quite naturally influences every other part of contemporaneous life. The result is that men are scrapped, whose usefulness, in other and different conditions, would be considered practically unimpaired.

With these facts in mind attention must be directed to provision for the old age of those who, cast aside, not through uselessness but through inability to find employment, have been unable to win themselves a competence. Of course industry pays higher wages, but the cost of living is higher in industrial centers, and the time through which a man may work by being shortened gives fewer years in which to provide for the day when he is no longer wanted. Germany considered these facts nearly two decades ago and by old age pension legislation sought to face them intelligently and in a practical way.

MINNEAPOLIS and St. Paul may not agree that Henry Ford should be given power but Henry has the power to go ahead. If Henry had shied at their fight they would have lost a $10,000,000 plant through their failure to get together.

CONGRESSMAN HAROLD KNUTSON thinks that he has done enough whipping of others during the past two terms. When he cracked the whip he had to do what it said, but from now on he will be free to keep away from the lash.

W. J. BRYAN expects to mix religion and politics. William Jennings has always been a bit of a mixture but he has nevre mixed anything successfully yet.

The Other Woman's Love

By MURA CURTIS LANE

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

After Dolly learned about the other woman she showed no change in her attitude toward her husband. Jim and she had been estranged for years, and they continued estranged.

Nevertheless, it rankled, eating into her very heart and soul. She would lie awake in her room at night with clenched fists, hating, hating—not Jim, but Alice.

She wondered what Alice was like. Because she herself was tall and dark, she pictured a slim little blonde person as the woman who had stolen the remnants of her husband's love from her.

And Jim never suspected that she knew, for Dolly never said a word.

Besides, he was all wrapped up in Alice—had been for years. Little by little, with grim persistence, Dolly learned little details about her. For instance, in the beginning there was that letter that she had found in Jim's old suit. Then there was the address—she found that out by seeing it penciled on a memorandum card. And Alice liked chocolates—she learned that when the bill was sent to their house instead of to Jim's office.

Dolly sent the bill back to the candy store, and it went to Jim's office, she supposed. Jim never knew.

And Dolly never said a word.

But her heart was burning in her, and she had never known before what it meant to hate so bitterly.

Some day, before she died, she would come face to face with Alice.

But it was Jim who died. He fell ill of pneumonia and died five days later, Dolly sitting beside him, holding his hand and kissing his forehead. And with Jim's death something of her former love for him awakened in her again.

It was some time since Jim had been to see Alice. He had been kinder to her, too, of late. She wondered whether he were growing tired of Alice—after all those years.

A letter came from her for Jim the day after he died. Dolly put it away; she could not bring herself to open it. And she rejoiced in her grim fashion that Alice did not share her knowledge that Jim was dead.

But as the letters began to come more and more often—they were forwarded from Jim's office—Dolly began to be troubled. She supposed she would have to let the woman know. She could not leave her in ignorance forever. It was—she swallowed hard—it was fair to Jim.

She went to see her, and found her exactly as she had supposed—one of those slim little blondes that steal men's hearts away. Alice lived in an apartment in a middle-class hotel. Dolly wondered whether Jim paid for it; but she never found that out.

Alice rose to receive her. Her eyebrows were a little elevated; she was trying to put herself on the aggressive.

"My husband isn't coming to see you any more," said Dolly.

"Indeed?"

"No. You see, he's dead."

The instant she had said it she regretted it, for Alice took the news as if she were stunned. She dropped in a heap of lace and muslin on the lounge in her boudoir. Dolly stood beside her, at first triumphant, then pitying.

Alice raised her tear-stained eyes—Dolly had never shed a tear when her husband died. "Tell me about it," she sobbed.

So Dolly told her. She even told her to wrest the last drop of bitterness from her heart, that Jim had spoken her name three times before he died, while he was unconscious.

"I don't suppose you know I've known about this for years?"

"Listen to me!" Alice had risen and was confronting her. "Jim loved you more than me!"

"What!"

"It's always the way. Didn't you know? They always go back to the wife in the end. Your husband and I parted forever four days before he was taken ill. I supposed when he didn't answer my letters that he meant it. And he did mean it. You see, I loved him, always loved him, never loved anyone but him. And he loved you more than me, deep down in his heart, although he hardly knew it himself."

And she burst into bitter tears. And with those all Dolly's hate and hardness seemed to dissolve. Gently she took Alice in her arms.

"We both loved him," she said softly.

By Gum!

The manager of a Michigan electric railway claims to have received the following letter:

"If the simpering, snub-nosed, tight-skirted, face-bedaubed, tittering little ninny who stuck gum on the street car seat on the Broadway line last Thursday evening, and permitted me to sit down it, will call at my office in the —— building, she can have her gum back. It is on the southern front of my spare trousers. If she can't get the gum off, she can have the pants, too."

Democracy.

What this country needs is schoolgirl democracy—the kind that swaps chewing gum cheerfully and fights like the devil for its sweetheart.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

TEMPORARY INJUNCTION, AITKIN COURTHOUSE

for any year later than 1920, and that appears on the face of the pleadings, but certain it is that there is at this time no showing of the 'ordinary current yearly expenses and other liabilities payable within the year' particularly involved in this inquiry. But were the 'tax lists on file' now before me, I could not properly rest upon a computation of what five mills upon the amount shown in such lists would produce, and adopt that as applicable to make up the deficiency between the amount of available funds in the treasury for court house construction and the total amount required for such construction under the proposed contract, without assuming that there would be no ordinary current yearly expenses and other liabilities within the year in question. Such an assumption would be contrary to common experience and improper. If it be urged that the burden is on the plaintiff to show those facts, the answer is that this case is not now being tried upon its merits, and that the court should consider, upon this application for a temporary injunction, that a trial would probably show these essential facts, that is to say, what such current expenses and other liabilities may be, and that their aggregate amount might so far reduce the tax levy as to leave a sum insufficient to meet the obligations of the county under its construction contract, in other words, the present status should be maintained until a full showing of pertinent facts is made—until a trial on the merits be had. This view is none the less important because of the provisions of section 2058, general statutes, 1913, which are of peculiar interest to the officials who may act for the county in making such a contract as is here contemplated.

"It is not clear by any means, upon this record, that the county board can now legally enter into a contract for construction, and it is therefore a proper exercise of discretion to issue this writ to maintain the status quo until the action can be heard and determined on the meris. Mitchell vs City of St. Paul. 114 Minn. 141,143; Goodrich vs N. W. T. Ex. Co., 148 Minn., 219,222".

Plane to Carry Fifty Soldiers.

The construction of an all metal airplane which shall be the largest of its type in the world, is the latest plan of the British air ministry. The machine is designed to carry 50 fully-armed men (approximately a platoon of soldiers). It is proposed to equip it with engines of the new semi-Diesel oil type. Their use will not only very considerably reduce the chances of fire in the air, but will largely eliminate the risk of the stoppages which now result from the delicacy of present-day carburetion and magneto systems. Experts believe that it would be a comparatively easy matter to construct planes for carrying 100 soldiers.

Relic of Bronze Age.

Interesting to antiquarians is the discovery of a cist containing human bones, believed to belong to the Bronze age, that has been unearthed at Pearniehill sand quarry, near Rosyth, Scotland. The cist was found about four feet below the surface, and consists of slabs of stone, 4 feet long and 16 to 18 inches in width and depth. Mr. Callander of the Royal Scottish Museum of Antiquities stated as his opinion that they belonged to the Bronze age of about 3,500 to 4,000 years ago.

COMMONSENSE HOME TREATMENT FOR HEAD AND CHEST COLDS

Get from your druggist a twenty-five cent par of Muco-Solvent Salve, the ingredients of whcih are used by physician constantly. Melt a little in a spoon and inhale the fumes; this will clear the head instantly and the vapors will sooth and heal the inflamed membranes of the upper respiratory tract.

If cold is in chest and deep seated, go to bed and stay there. Take a good laxative. Rub Muco-Solvent thickly on chest and cover with warm flannel. Arrange bed clothes so that patitnt will breathe the vapors that arise. Apply the salve up each nostril and breathe deeply.

Tomorrow morning you will be like a new person. If not, call doctor, because it is possible for a cold that can't be broken with this treatment to turn into pneumonia in an hour.

Neenah Physician is Honored for His Discovery

Most Unusual Document of Known Existence

Dr. L. W. Giffin, of Neenah, Wisconsin, in recognition for his untiring efforts and signal success in an epidemic in 1893, was given a testimonial in writing by fifty-one ministers gathered in conference at Zion's church, Milwaukee. The document is probably the most unusual in existence.

Terrible Epidemic

Dr. Giffin had to deal with an epidemic of Diptheria, Croup and Throat Trouble. He developed a prescription which brought marvelous results. Several other physicians used it, until it attracted the attention of half the state of Wisconsin and the ministers honored him with their most unusual document.

By reason of the fact that his medicine loosened and expelled the phlegm or mucous which gathers in cases of head colds, croup and the like, Dr. Giffin's prescription became known as "Muco-Solvent."

It is purely a vegetable compound, a solution of antiseptics so combined as to be a specific for suppurative and inflammatory diseases of the mucous membrane.

If you have a cold that does not respond instantly to the use of Muco-Solvent Liquid 475 cents and $1.00 everywhere). Directions will be found with each bottle.

First Aid to The Injured:

WHAT TO DO FOR SCALDS AND BURNS

Scalds and burns should be treated at once. If extensive, rush patient to hospital or doctor. For lesser injuries of this kind bathe the burned or scalded member in a weak solution of boric acid or ordinary baking soda dissolved in water. Do this at once. Then apply a thick dressing of Muco-Solvent Salve and bandage with soft clean muslin to protect from air. This will alleviate the pain, and encourage the healing process.

All druggists have Muco-Solvent in 25-cent jars for home treatment of colds, coughs, bronchitis, asthma, etc. Also it is used for chapped hands and face, fever blisters, and fine for after shaving.

Child's Cold Must Have Instant Attention

Pneumonia Sometimes Develops in One Hour

MUCO-SOLVENT SALVE HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

However, if cold is developed, give laxative and put child in bed. Apply salve in nostrils and spread thickly on throat and chest, covering both parts with warm soft cloths. Muco-Solvent Salve acts internally by absorption, doing the work of plasters and poultices and attracting the blood to the affected parts to aid in scattering congestion.

By this treatment colds of children and adults can be broken in a few hours usually, and without the use of drugs or opiates. Muco-Solvent Salve is sold in brown glass jars at 25 cents by H. P. Dunn Drug Store, Lammon's Drug Store, Skauge Drug Co., Johnson's Pharmacy. And by Folls Drug Co. and Lovdahl Drug Co. at Crosby.

The instant she had said it she regretted it, for Alice took the news as if she were stunned. She dropped in a heap of lace and muslin on the lounge in her boudoir. Dolly stood beside her, at first triumphant, then pitying.

Alice raised her tear-stained eyes—Dolly had never shed a tear when her husband died. "Tell me about it," she sobbed.

So Dolly told her. She even told her to wrest the last drop of bitterness from her heart, that Jim had spoken her name three times before he died, while he was unconscious.

"I don't suppose you know I've known about this for years?"

"Listen to me!" Alice had risen and was confronting her. "Jim loved you more than me!"

"What!"

"It's always the way. Didn't you know? They always go back to the wife in the end. Your husband and I parted forever four days before he was taken ill. I supposed when he didn't answer my letters that he meant it. And he did mean it. You see, I loved him, always loved him, never loved anyone but him. And he loved you more than me, deep down in his heart, although he hardly knew it himself."

And she burst into bitter tears. And with those all Dolly's hate and hardness seemed to dissolve. Gently she took Alice in her arms.

"We both loved him," she said softly.

By Gum!

The manager of a Michigan electric railway claims to have received the following letter:

"If the simpering, snub-nosed, tight-skirted, face-bedaubed, tittering little ninny who stuck gum on the street car seat on the Broadway line last Thursday evening, and permitted me to sit down it, will call at my office in the —— building, she can have her gum back. It is on the southern front of my spare trousers. If she can't get the gum off, she can have the pants, too."

Democracy.

What this country needs is schoolgirl democracy—the kind that swaps chewing gum cheerfully and fights like the devil for its sweetheart.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

for any year later than 1920, and that appears on the face of the pl: !ings, but certain it is that there is at this time no showing of the 'ordinary current yearly expenses and other liabilities payable within the year' particularly involved in this inquiry. But were the 'tax lists on file' now before me, I could not properly rest upon a computation of what five mills upon the amount shown in such lists would produce, and adopt that as applicable to mak up the deficiency between the amoun. of available funds in the treasury for court house construction and the total amount required for such construction under the proposed contract, without assuming that there would be no ordinary current yearly expenses and other liabilities within the year in question. Such an assumption would be contrary to common experience and improper. If it be urged that the burden is on the plaintiff to show those facts, the answer is that this case is not now being tried upon its merits, and that the court should consider, upon this application for a temporary injunction, that a trial would probably show these essential facts, that is to say, what such current expenses and other liabilities may be, and that their aggregate amount might so far reduce the tax levy as to leave a sum insufficient to meet the obligations of the county under its construction contract, in other words, the present status should be maintained until a full showing of pertinent facts is made—until a trial on the merits be had. This view is none the less important because of the provisions of section 2058, general statutes, 1913, which are of peculiar interest to the officials who may act for the county in making such a contract as is here contemplated.

"It is not clear by any means, upon this record, that the county board can now legally enter into a contract for construction, and it is therefore a proper exercise of discretion to issue this writ to maintain the status quo until the action can be heard and determined on the meris. Plane to Carry Fifty Soldiers.

The construction of an all metal airplane which shall be the largest of its type in the world, is the latest plan of the British air ministry. The machine is designed to carry 50 fully-armed men (approximately a platoon of soldiers). It is proposed to equip it with engines of the new semi-Diesel oil type. Their use will not only very considerably reduce the chances of fire in the air, but will largely eliminate the risk of the stoppages which now result from the delicacy of present-day carburetion and magneto systems. Experts believe that it would be a comparatively easy matter to construct planes for carrying 100 soldiers.

Relic of Bronze Age.

Interesting to antiquarians is the discovery of a cist containing human bones, believed to belong to the Bronze age, that has been unearthed at Pearniehill sand quarry, near Rosyth, Scotland. The cist was found about four feet below the surface, and consists of slabs of stone, 4 feet long and 16 to 18 inches in width and depth. Mr. Callander of the Royal Scottish Museum of Antiquities stated as his opinion that they belonged to the Bronze age of about 3,500 to 4,000 years ago.

COMMONSENSE HOME TREATMENT FOR HEAD AND CHEST COLDS

Get from your druggist a twenty-five cent par of Muco-Solvent Salve, the ingredients of whcih are used by physician constantly. Melt a little in a spoon and inhale the fumes; this will clear the head instantly and the vapors will sooth and heal the inflamed membranes of the upper respiratory tract.

If cold is in chest and deep seated, go to bed and stay there. Take a good laxative. Rub Muco-Solvent thickly on chest and cover with warm flannel. Arrange bed clothes so that patitnt will breathe the vapors that arise. Apply the salve up each nostril and breathe deeply.

Tomorrow morning you will be like a new person. If not, call doctor, because it is possible for a cold that can't be broken with this treatment to turn into pneumonia in an hour.

Neenah Physician is Honored for His Discovery

Most Unusual Document of Known Existence

Dr. L. W. Giffin, of Neenah, Wisconsin, in recognition for his untiring efforts and signal success in an epidemic in 1893, was given a testimonial in writing by fifty-one ministers gathered in conference at Zion's church, Milwaukee. The document is probably the most unusual in existence.

Terrible Epidemic

Dr. Giffin had to deal with an epidemic of Diptheria, Croup and Throat Trouble. He developed a prescription which brought marvelous results. Several other physicians used it, until it attracted the attention of half the state of Wisconsin and the ministers honored him with their most unusual document.

By reason of the fact that his medicine loosened and expelled the phlegm or mucous which gathers in cases of head colds, croup and the like, Dr. Giffin's prescription became known as "Muco-Solvent."

It is purely a vegetable compound, a solution of antiseptics so combined as to be a specific for suppurative and inflammatory diseases of the mucous membrane.

If you have a cold that does not respond instantly to the use of Muco-Solvent Liquid (75 cents and $1.00 everywhere). Directions will be found with each bottle.

First Aid to The Injured:

WHAT TO DO FOR SCALDS AND BURNS

Scalds and burns should be treated at once. If extensive, rush patient to hospital or doctor. For lesser injuries of this kind bathe the burned or scalded member in a weak solution of boric acid or ordinary baking soda dissolved in water. Do this at once. Then apply a thick dressing of Muco-Solvent Salve and bandage with soft clean muslin to protect from air. This will alleviate the pain, and encourage the healing process.

All druggists have Muco-Solvent in 25-cent jars for home treatment of colds, coughs, bronchitis, asthma, etc. Also it is used for chapped hands and face, fever blisters, and fine for after shaving.

Child's Cold Must Have Instant Attention

Pneumonia Sometimes Develops in One Hour

MUCO-SOLVENT SALVE HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

However, if cold is developed, give laxative and put child in bed. Apply salve in nostrils and spread thickly on throat and chest, covering both parts with warm soft cloths. Muco-Solvent Salve acts internally by absorption, doing the work of plasters and poultices and attracting the blood to the affected parts to aid in scattering congestion.

By this treatment colds of children and adults can be broken in a few hours usually, and without the use of drugs or opiates. Muco-Solvent Salve is sold in brown glass jars at 25 cents by H. P. Dunn Drug Store, Lammon's Drug Store, Skauge Drug Co., Johnson's Pharmacy. And by Folls Drug Co. and Lovdahl Drug Co. at Crosby.

YEARLY REPORTS BY CHAIRMEN

Various Standing Committees Give Excellent Resume of Work Done

CHAMBER COMMERCE MEETING

Secretary O. J. Bouma Resignation Deferred from January 31 to February 28

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held Wednesday evening, a goodly number being in attendance.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the meeting was the hearing of the yearly reports submitted by the chairmen of the various committees which took up the first part of the session.

The Home Building Committee, of which Theodore Brusegaard is chairman, reported that through its efforts the Brainerd Building and Loan Association had been organized. The erection of five homes was financed by the association in its first year, $9,900 being loaned on a property valuation of $21,500. A dividend of 6 1-4 per cent has been authorized for the first six months activities, and on this excellent showing five of the directors have subscribed for additional paid up stock.

The finance committee, through A. L. Hoffman, its chairman, made a very comprehensive report of the condition of the Chamber, which will be published in full in the Dispatch. In explaining his report, Mr. Hoffman stated that he was surprised, in going over the books, at the good condition of the Chamber and its membership.

The Summer Resort and Tourist Committee, headed by R. S. Wilcox have done some very good work. Ten thousand maps of Crow Wing county were prepared and distributed through various tourists bureaus in this and other states as well as being sent directly to all inquirers.

Through the kindness of the Lions Club a Tourist Information Bureau was established for the Chamber of Commerce at the corner of Sixth and Laurel Streets, and maintained by the Tourist committee.

John A. Hoffbauer, chairman of the publicity committee made an excellent report, giving a resume of the work of this committee and showing that much has been done to put Brainerd and this section on the map in capital letters. The report will be published in detail in this paper, as it is believed that all will be interested in the publicity given the city and county the past year.

The investigation committee, D. H. Fullerton, has had submitted to it matters such as subscription propositions and advertising schemes which the committee investigated before placing its O. K. on their circulation.

One of the important committees of the Chamber of Comerce is the House and Social. George Lowe, chairman, reported that this committee has put on a number of dinners which showed a small profit, and this money was utilized in making repairs and additions to the equipment of the club. In addition $175 was also expended for this purpose.

O. A. Peterson, chairman of the Retail Trade committee stated that a Community Sales Day campaign had been inaugurated by his committee but because of a lack of co-operation and interest the plans had not been as successful as had been anticipated.

Hilding Swanson, chairman of a special committee on reorganizing the Chamber, reported, with a lengthy plan to revise the entire government of the club. It was recommended that the rules of the Chamber be suspended and that an election of officers be held under the new plan which the committee suggests of a direct primary election.

Bp this method, all of the officers would be elected by direct vote with the exception of the Secretary, who would be appointed by the board of directors, subject to the approval of the Chamber.

The articles of incorporation will have to be revised and amended, requiring the necessary official publication and filing with the secretary of state and register of deeds.

All of this report by Mr. Swanson's committee was approved and the committee asked to have ready the new amendents to the constitution at the next meeting.

Secretary O. . Bouma handed in his resignation, asking that it take effect January 31st. On motion Mr. Bouma was asked to reconsider this date and officiate until February 28th which he consented to do.

H. F. Michael spoke at length on the work of the Chamber and its secretary during the past year, expressing regret at the secretary's resignation. Mr. Michael called the organization a clearing house for all civic affairs, and a power house for creating community interest. Others spoke in the same vein, extolling the value of the club and the results that had accomplished during 1922.

The resignation of seventeen members were read and accepted. These names included: Dr. Walter Courtney, A. J. Ellison, M. E. Ryan, Carl Zapffe, Mons Mahlum, A. G. Trommald, Citizens State Bank, F. H. Gruenhagen, Edward Gruenhagen, O. B. Johnson, J. E. O'Brien, C. W. Mahlum, Geo. D. LaBar, S.R. Adair A. C. Ebert, A. J. Hayes, and E. C. Bane.

Following the resignation of the secretary, a motion was made to appoint a special committee, to wait on these resigned members, in an effort to induce them to reconsider their action. R.R. Wise was named as chairman of this committee.

J. P. Shea, representative in this territory for Stone, Ordean Wells & Co., was elected to membership in the Chamber. Mr. Shea makes his headquarters in Brainerd, and is interested in its civic development.

Adjournment was taken to next Wednesday evening, at which time Hilding Swanson's committee will be prepared to report on the amendments to the articles of incorporation.

BRAINERD HIGH TO INVADE AITKIN

Basketball Game Set for Friday Evening, Anticipated It will be Hard Fought Contest

BRAINERD QUINT IS HOPEFUL

This Is the First Game for the Locals Since the Holidays, Big Things Expected

(W. G.)

The high school basket ball team are packing their bags and will invade the domains of Aitkin Friday evening.

It is anticipated that this will be a hard fought game. Brainerd defeated Aitkin once this season, in a neck and neck match, and her opponents will make a strong fight to reverse conditions on Friday evening.

This is the first game for the locals since the holidays, and they intend to start the new year right by a big victory. The Brainerd second team, who defeated the Aitkin seconds, will again meet the same team Friday.

Both of the Brainerd teams have been practicing continually since the last match, and it is believed that this heavy training will show up to good advantage in the coming clashes.

Wally Engbretson was out on account of injuries the first part of the week, but it is hoped that he will be in condition to play against Aitkin. The line-ups will be practically the same as in previous games.

Many fans are expected to follow the battlers to Aitkin, since such excellent rail connections can be made. It is possible to go to the game on the seven o'clock flyer, and return at midnight.

Gullberg-Lind

Miss Ruth Lind, daughter of August Lind of 619 South Tenth street, was married Wednesday evening at the Clara Lutheran parsonage to Nells T. Gullberg, Rev. August Samuelson officiating. It was a quiet wedding, the only attendants present being Ed. Wang, Mrs. Anna Wang and daughter of Brainerd and Miss Esther Johnson of St. Paul. The bride wore brown canton crepe with hat to match and the bridesmaid also wore brown. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the brid's father.

The bride is a charming young girl and for some years was employed as a clerk at the court house . The bridegroom is an employe of Kampmann & Sons.

The young couple left for the Twin Cities where they will visit two weeks and upon their return, will make their home in Brainerd. The Dispatch joins their many friends in wishing them a full measure of happiness and prosperity.

UNUSUAL ACCIDENT

Automobile and Horse in Collision at Laurel and 6th Honors even

Rather an unusual accident occurred at noon Thursday, when an automobile and a horse collided at the intersection of Laurel and South Sixth streets.

The horse was owned by Peter Jones, junk dealer and was being ridden bareback by Thomas Hubbard, Jones' brother-in-law.

Hubbard was riding west on Laurel when his horse, going at a gallop, ran into a new Overland automobile belonging to and driven by J. A. Joncas.

The impact was so great that it turned Mr. Joncas' car completely around, crumpling one rear fender and putting a dent in the body.

Hubbard was thrown over the horse's head, lighting on the pavement some ten feet in front. Both horse and rider miraculously escaped injury. The rider was taken into custody by the police, charged with reckless riding, and will be given a trial this afternoon.

BRAINERD BUILDING & LOAN ASSOCIATION

Weathers First Six Months of Life in Wonderful Shape, Demonstrating Plan is Sound

5 NEW RESIDENCES FINANCED

At Present Association Holds $9,900 in Mortage Securities on Property Valuation of $21,500

In speaking of the Brainerd Building & Loan Association, Theodore B. Brusegaard, chairman of the home building and improvements committee of the Chamber of Comerce, stated the association has weathered its first six months of life in wonderful shape and has demonstrated that the plan on which it was built is sound. Due to the industrial situation the association was compelled to restrict its activities, but neverthless, has been able to finance five new residences, and has approved a loan on a sixth.

At present it hold $9,900 in mortage securities on a property valuation of $21,500. This reflects the safe and conservative administration of the board of directors of the association. The first six months dividend has just been authorized at the rate of 6 1-4 per cent per annum, and five of it directors have subscribed for additional paid up stock on this showing.

Religious Education Committee

The Religious Education committee of the First Baptist Church Bible school will meet this evening at the church at 8:40 o'clock. Matters of vital importance are to be considered in the interest and for the progress of the school.

Civilization Unjustly Blamed.

Decayed teeth have been found in a skull thousands of years old. Impacted wisdom teeth can be found in skulls taken from the shell mounds around San Francisco bay and exhibited in the ethnological museum of the Affiliated colleges, The theory that civilization causes such troubles is no sounder than the decayed molars.

Knowledge Must Be Used.

All knowledge is lost which ends in the knowing, for every truth we know is a candle given us to work by. Gain all the knowledge you can, and then use it for the highest purpose.—John Ruskin.

Burden of Incompetency.

Either a man must be competent or he is being carried through life on somebody's back.

BRAINERD HIGH TO INVADE AITKIN

Basketball Game Set for Friday Evening. Anticipated It will be Hard Fought Contest

BRAINERD QUINT IS HOPEFUL

This Is the First Game for the Locals Since the Holidays, Big Things Expected

(W. G.)

The high school basket ball team are packing their bags and will invade the domains of Aitkin Friday evening.

It is anticipated that this will be a hard fought game. Brainerd defeated Aitkin once this season, in a neck and neck match, and her opponents will make a strong fight to reverse conditions on Friday evening.

This is the first game for the locals since the holidays, and they intend to start the new year right by a big victory. The Brainerd second team, who defeated the Aitkin seconds, will again meet the same team Friday.

Both of the Brainerd teams have been practicing continually since the last match, and it is believed that this heavy training will show up to good advantage in the coming clashes.

Wally Engbretson was out on account of injuries the first part of the week, but it is hoped that he will be in condition to play against Aitkin. The line-ups will be practically the same as in previous games.

Many fans are expected to follow the battlers to Aitkin, since such excellent rail connections can be made. It is possible to go to the game on the seven o'clock flyer, and return at midnight.

Gullberg-Lind

Miss Ruth Lind, daughter of August Lind of 619 South Tenth street, was married Wednesday evening at the Clara Lutheran parsonage to Nelis T. Gullberg, Rev. August Samuelson officiating. It was a quiet wedding, the only attendants present being Ed. Wang, Mrs. Anna Wang and daughter of Brainerd and Miss Esther Johnson of St. Paul. The bride wore brown canton crepe with hat to match and the bridesmaid also wore brown. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's father.

The bride is a charming young girl and for some years was employed as a clerk at the court house . The bridegroom is an employe of Kampmann & Sons.

The young couple left for the Twin Cities where they will visit two weeks and upon their return, will make their home in Brainerd. The Dispatch joins their many friends in wishing them a full measure of happiness and prosperity.

UNUSUAL ACCIDENT

Automobile and Horse in Collision at Laurel and 6th Honors even

Rather an unusual accident occurred at noon Thursday, when an automobile and a horse collided at the intersection of Laurel and South Sixth streets.

The horse was owned by Peter Jones, junk dealer and was being ridden bareback by Thomas Hubbard, Jones' brother-in-law.

Hubbard was riding west on Laurel when his horse, going at a gallop, ran into a new Overland automobile belonging to and driven by J. A. Joncas.

The impact was so great that it turned Mr. Joncas' car completely around, crumpling one rear fender and putting a dent in the body.

Hubbard was thrown over the horse's head, lighting on the pavement some ten feet in front. Both horse and rider miraculously escaped injury. The rider was taken into custody by the police, charged with reckless riding, and will be given a trial this afternoon.

Walthall Has Great Role In "One Clear Call"

"Acting to me means action. I can't do my best work unless the story is interesting. If it is, why I'm ready to assume all responsibility for my work."

In these words Henry B. Walthall celebrated the announcement that he had been selected for the featured role of John M. Stahl's "One Clear Call," which will be shown at the New Park on Saturday and Sunday Depicting turbid events in the usually placid existence of a small Alabama town, the story provides the actor with the kind of a part which, according to his statement, he is capable of giving a superb performance in. Among the many difficult feats Walthall was called upon for during the filming of this production were: escaping from a gang of clan riders, racing along with a train, and dodgin gan automobile so as to escape by a fraction of an inch. In addition to these action scenes, he was called upon for emotional moments depicting sincerely but simply the longing for forfeited mother love and the impulse towards regeneration

At the Lyceum

There are so many fine things in the Goldwyn picture, "Poverty of Riches," by Leroy Scott," that opened at the Lyceum theatre yesterday, that it is difficult to say what its strongest impression is. The story is one of family life, simply told, yet replete with drama, as real life is. The acting of the all-star cast leaves nothing to be desired; and the story shows an actual progression in the unfolding of the characters of the people in the photoplay. At the end of the story, life has taught them something, and they are different people from the young married folks we met at the beginning of the first reel. It would be unfair to disclose the plot of the story, but it is gripping, entertaining and delightfully told. It will be shown again tonight

Betty Compson at Lyceum Friday and Saturday

Betty Compson the popular Paramount star is booked to appear at the Lyceum on Friday and Saturday of this week in "The Woman and the Law" a 7 reel Paramount picture.

STEVEDORING IN GRIDIRON STYLE

"Brick" Muller, all American football star of the University of California Eleven, found that he'd need to earn a few dollars to help him through college. So during the holiday vacation, Muller got a job as a stevedore, and he sure did prove himself an all American at that game, too. "Brick" worked along the San Francisco water-front docks.

Car Embodies New Ideas.

Starting where the motorcycle and sidecar "left off," an English inventor has built an attractive light car which combines the comfort of the auto with the economy and mobility of the sidecar, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The usual three wheels are retained and the chassis frame is made up of a series of triangles. The body is modeled on that of a runabout, with slanting radiator hood, windshield, wide cushioned seat, collapsible top and rear compartment for luggage or extra tires. The controlling mechanism resembles that of the larger machine, and the engine, a ten-horse power, two-cylinder design, is water-cooled like that of larger cars.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost, you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, and look years younger. Adv.

IS HEAD STUFFED BY CATARRH OR COLD? USE HEALING CREAM

If your nostrils are clogged, your throat distressed, or your head is stuffed by nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic, germ destroying cream int oyour nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing inflamed, swollen membranes and you get instant relief.

How good it feels. Your nostrils are open. Your head is clear. No more hawking, snuffling, dryness or struggling for breath. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from any druggist. Colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up. Relief is sure. Adv.

What Was Necessary.

Six-year-old Mary Ellen had formed the habit of keeping the family waiting at meal times while she washed her hands at the kitchen sink. Nor did she break it when her grandfather, who was a minister, came to the house to visit.

One day her mother had called to her to hurry, but Mary Ellen still lingered. And mother spoke with more authority, saying: "Mary Ellen, you hurry up."

Back floated Mary Ellen's answer: "You just tell grandfather to go on and say grace. I can hear every word of it in here as well as in there."

Doubtful Recommendation.

A London newspaper contains an advertisement of an old English home to be sold, which begins in the familiar style—"Twelve bedrooms, four sitting rooms, paneled dining room, ingle nooks, dower chests," etc., and suddenly breaks off from the catalog of ancient blessings with this modernism: "But, owing to electric light, no ghost." One hardly knows whether this exception will add to or detract from the "pulling" power of the announcement. —Outlook.

BEWARE OF DRUGS

Medical Authorities Advise Caution in the Use of Preparations Liable to Contain Powerful Drugs.

Never drug your system to relieve or prevent colds, grippe or "Flu." Drugs are liable to affect the nervous system or weaken the heart.

Hot medicinal tea is now recommended by many physicians, because it is best for the human system, acts quickly on the bowels and intestines by eliminating the excess poisonous wastes that usually tend to lower your physical resistance Just pure, refresning, healthful herbs from nature; that is why millions are now using Bulgarian Herb Tea to relieve and break up bad colds, and also keep the poisons flushed from the system. Many physicians now prescribe Bulgarian Herb Tea, and your druggist can honestly recommend it.
